If I Were the Mayor of Crescent, Iowa

If I had the opportunity to be the Mayor of Crescent, Iowa, I would promote new business, aid the next generations' education, and provide our first responders with the necessary education to be able to help our citizens. These three tasks will provide the City of Crescent, Iowa a better future.

Crescent is in need of a new business. A new ice cream/coffee shop would bring new customers and additional revenue to the City of Crescent. I would like to add a business that serves coffee as well as ice cream. This business combination would be utilized by many individuals. In the summer when the weather is warm, adults as well as children desire a cold treat. In the winter, people look for a hot cup of coffee or hot chocolate to warm themselves up.

Currently in Crescent, Iowa, there is only an elementary school. I would raise money to build a middle school and a high school. This would ensure that children will have a local and excellent education without having to go far from their homes and additionally, open enroll in other districts. Currently, there is open land located across from the Golden Hills subdivision. I would look into purchasing it for further developmental opportunities. A school district within Crescent would help bring new families into the Crescent community, more tax revenue, and bring the local community together to support the new district.

When the Crescent first responders arrive on the scene of an accident, fire, or other emergency situation, I want to make sure they are adequately trained and equipped to handle any and all emergencies. I would coordinate with the local Council Bluffs, Iowa fire department to provide the necessary training to our local volunteer first responders in order to be able to provide the best care possible to our local residents.

Becoming the mayor of Crescent, Iowa is no easy task. It entails a lot of responsibility as well as listening to your local citizens on their needs and wants. It is a matter of deciding what is best for the town of Crescent and its future. I am up for the challenge and hard work that it takes to help the current and future citizens of Crescent, Iowa.
